- ➔ Tor prevents people from learning your location or browsing habits.
- ➔ Tor is for web browsers, instant messaging clients, and more.
- ➔ Tor is free and open source for Windows, Mac, Linux/Unix, and Android

What is Tor?

Tor is free software and an open network that helps you defend against traffic analysis, a form of network surveillance that threatens personal freedom and privacy, confidential business activities and relationships, and state security.

Learn more about Tor »

Why Anonymity Matters

Tor protects you by bouncing your communications around a distributed network of relays run by volunteers all around the world: it prevents somebody watching your Internet connection from learning what sites you visit, and it prevents the sites you visit from learning your physical location.

5 Best Free VPNs in 2018 – Proven Providers That You Can Trust!

Mande Rose
January 8, 2018

A free Virtual Private Network (VPN) is an online service that allows people to unblock websites. In addition, reliable and trusted free VPNs provide privacy and security for their users. Although there are many complimentary VPNs on the market, it is really important to avoid most costless services. That is because free VPN software (VPN client) must still provide privacy and security (and it hardly ever does). That's why we've curated this list of the five best free VPNs.

What's most important to you?

No search history

Findx does not store your search history after displaying the results of your search. By default, your search terms are not passed to any web page you visit after searching on findx. Every time you search, it is as if it is the first time. Because we don't save your history, we can't share it with anyone. You can't be tracked by advertisers around the web for things you searched for on findx.

This means that we don't rank the search results based on your (or any person's) search or click-through history. So we need your help.

You can improve search results

We readily admit that the most helpful and relevant results may not be at the top of the list – at least not during the findx beta. Search results should not be biased, they should be same for everyone – what you see is what everyone gets. But

30 Free Music Search Engines That Will Rock Your World

by Nakodari

Nov 17, 2008

15 Comments

Almost a month back we covered 16 search engines to find music online, this time we have come up with 30 more music search engines that will rock your world. It is always better to find your favorite artist or song in search engines dedicated to music rather than finding them on Google. Each one of them have been tested and they all work flawlessly.

The Hype Machine

The Hype Machine is a music blog search engine, which means it follows music blog discussions, and all songs end up with them. Just enter your favorite artist or song name, and start listening instantly.

How To Get The Best Medical Advice Online

The Internet has twice saved Jola Stettler's life.

In November 2006, the 39-year-old mother of three was diagnosed with ocular melanoma that had spread to her liver.

"My oncologist flat out told me that there is no treatment," remembers Stettler, who emigrated to the U.S. from Poland in 1994. "He said for me to go home and enjoy with my family whatever time I have left, which could be up to six months."

Stettler's husband, Marek, couldn't fathom the oncologist's terminal diagnosis and instead turned to the Internet. Hours of research led him to Dr. Charles

1. Click all the apps you want

You can learn more about a program by hovering over it.

2. Click Get Installer and run it

Ninite installs apps for you in the background. No clicking next. We say NO to toolbars or other junk.

3. Run it again later

Your installer will update apps to the latest versions. If something is up-to-date we'll skip it.

Get a FREE “throw away” Phone Number

Get started with Google Voice

With Google Voice, you get a free phone number for calls, text messages, and voicemail. You can use the apps on smartphones and computers, and you can link your number to any mobile or landline number.

What you can do with Google Voice

- Text from your computer or mobile phone
- Read your voicemail and search through it like email
- Personalize voicemail greetings for family and friends
- Make international calls at low rates
- Get protected from spam calls, block unwanted callers, and screen calls before answering

To offer these services, Google Voice saves and processes your call, text, and voicemail information.

Start using Google Voice

First, you'll need:

- A Google Account
- U.S. phone number that can forward calls after ringing
 - Note: Some VoIP phone number providers don't allow conditional call forwarding
- Computer or smartphone with Internet access (for sign-up)

Then, sign up at Google Voice or through the Google Voice app on Android or iOS.

The good news about the Internet and its most visible component, the World Wide Web, is that there are hundreds of millions of pages available, waiting to present information on an amazing variety of topics. The bad news about the Internet is that there are hundreds of millions of pages available, most of them titled according to the whim of their author, almost all of them sitting on servers with cryptic names. When you need to know about a particular subject, how do you know which pages to read? If you're like most people, you visit an Internet search engine.

Internet search engines are special sites on the Web that are designed to help people find information stored on other sites. There are differences in the ways various search engines work, but they all perform three basic tasks:

- They search the Internet -- or select pieces of the Internet -- based on important words.
- They keep an index of the words they find, and where they find

How to search on Google

Learn a few tips and tricks to help you easily find information on Google.

Tip 1: Keep it simple

No matter what you're looking for, start with a simple search like where's the closest airport?. You can always add a few descriptive words if necessary.

If you're looking for a place or product in a specific location, add the location. For example, bakery seattle.

Tip 2: Search using your voice

Tired of typing? Click the  microphone icon in the Google app or Chrome's search box to search by voice.

Tip 3: Choose words carefully

When you're deciding what words to put in the search box, try to choose words that are likely to appear on the site you're looking for. For example, instead of saying my head hurts, say headache, because that's the word a medical site would use.

Tip 4: Don't worry about the little things

- Spelling. Google's spell checker automatically uses the most common spelling of a given word, whether or not you spell it correctly.
- Capitalization. A search for New York Times is the same as a search for new york times.

Tip 5: Find quick answers

For many searches, Google will do the work for you and show an answer to your question on the search results. Some features, like information about sports teams, aren't available in all regions.

10 tips for smarter, more efficient Internet searching

These days, everyone is expected to be up to speed on Internet search techniques. But there are still a few tricks that some users -- and even savvy searchers -- may not be aware of.

Did you hate memorizing seemingly insignificant facts for tests at school? No photographic memory? Good news! Life is now an open-book exam — assuming you have a computer, browser, and Internet access. If you know how to use a good search engine, you don't have to stuff your mind with facts that are useful only when playing Jeopardy! and Trivial Pursuit.

Chances are, you aren't the first person to run across the problem you are experiencing. Chances are also good that an answer is awaiting your discovery on the Internet — you just have to remove the irrelevant pages and the unhelpful/incorrect results to find that needle in the haystack.

Google has been fanatical about speed. There is little doubt that it has built an incredibly fast and thorough search engine. Unfortunately, the human element of the Internet search equation is often overlooked. These 10 tips are designed to improve that human element and better your Internet search skills. (Note: All examples below refer to the Google search engine.)

HTTP cookie

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

A cookie, also known as an HTTP cookie, web cookie, Internet cookie, or browser cookie, is a small piece of data sent from a website and stored in a user's web browser while the user is browsing that website. Every time the user loads the website, the browser sends the cookie back to the server to notify the website of the user's previous activity.^[1] Cookies were designed to be a reliable mechanism for websites to remember stateful information (such as items in a shopping cart) or to record the user's browsing activity (including clicking particular buttons, logging in, or recording which pages were visited by the user as far back as months or years ago).

Although cookies cannot carry viruses, and cannot install malware on the host computer,^[2] tracking cookies and especially third-party tracking cookies are commonly used as ways to compile long-term records of individuals' browsing histories—a potential privacy concern that prompted European^[3] and U.S. law makers to take action in 2011.^{[4][5]} Cookies can also store passwords and form content a user has previously entered, such as a credit card number or an address. When a user accesses a website with a cookie function for the first time, a cookie is sent from server to the browser and stored with the browser in the local computer. Later when that user goes back to the same website, the website will recognize the user because of the stored cookie with the user's information.^[6]

Other kinds of cookies perform essential functions in the modern web. Perhaps most importantly, authentication cookies are the most common method used by web servers to know whether the user is logged in or not, and which account they are logged in with. Without such a mechanism, the site would not know whether to send a page containing sensitive information, or require the user to authenticate themselves by logging in. The security of an authentication cookie generally depends on the security of the issuing website and the user's web browser, and on whether the cookie data is encrypted. Security vulnerabilities may allow a cookie's data to be read by a hacker, used to gain access to user data, or used to gain access (with the user's credentials) to the website to which the cookie belongs (see cross-site scripting and cross-site request forgery for examples).^[7]

Marie Curie Scientist

Marie Curie's biography is inspiring. Discoverer – with her husband Pierre – of Radium and Polonium, first woman to win a Nobel Prize, only person to win Nobel Prizes in two science fields, first female Professor at the Sorbonne, and refiner of X-ray imaging. What have you done with your day?

All of this is the more remarkable when you consider the prejudice that a

Radioactivity refers to the particles which are emitted from nuclei as a result of nuclear instability. Because the nucleus experiences the intense conflict between the two strongest forces in nature, it should not be surprising that there are many nuclear isotopes which are unstable and emit some kind of radiation.

What a tangled web we weave, indeed. About 40 percent of the world's population uses the Web for news, entertainment, communication and myriad other purposes [source: Internet World Stats]. Yet even as more and more people log on, they are actually finding less of the data that's stored online. That's because only a sliver of what we know as the World Wide Web is easily accessible.

The so-called surface Web, which all of us use routinely, consists of data that search engines can find and then offer up in response to your queries. But in the same way that only the tip of an iceberg

Media conglomerates: The Big 6

These six media companies are known as The Big 6.

While independent media outlets still exist (and there are a lot of them), the major outlets are almost all owned by these six conglomerates.

To be clear, "media" in this context does not refer just to news outlets — it refers to any medium that controls the distribution of information.

So here, "media" includes 24-hour news stations, newspapers, publishing houses, Internet utilities, and even video game developers.

With that in mind, let's take a look at each of The Big 6, who control them, and what they own.

STUDY: GOOGLE SEARCHES FAVOR LEFT-WING CONTENT

Many conservatives suspect that Google, along with Facebook and other new media giants, are biased in favor of the left. The suspicion is logical. The class that operates these outlets can be viewed as a younger version of the class that operates the liberal mainstream media. Why expect different from it?

I don't deal with Facebook, but I use Google for searches. It seems to me that it's easier to find left-liberal content than conservative content in typical searches.

Now, there's a study that confirms my impression and links the phenomenon to political bias by Google. The study is by SEO Competitive Analysis company CanIRank.

It finds that top search results are almost 40 percent more likely to contain pages with a "Left" or "Far Left" slant than they are to contain pages from the right. Searchers are 65 percent more likely to encounter liberal search results than conservative search results among the five first returns to their inquiry.

New Google algorithm restricts access to left-wing, progressive web sites

By Andre Damon and Niles Niemuth
27 July 2017

In the three months since Internet monopoly Google announced plans to keep users from accessing “fake news,” the global traffic rankings of a broad range of left-wing, progressive, anti-war and democratic rights organizations have fallen significantly.

On April 25, 2017, Google announced that it had implemented changes to its search service to make it harder for users to access what it called “low-quality” information such as “conspiracy theories” and “fake news.”

The company said in a blog post that the central purpose of the change to its search algorithm was to give the search giant greater control in identifying content deemed objectionable by its guidelines. It declared that it had “improved our evaluation methods and made algorithmic updates” in order “to surface more authoritative content.”

Google continued, “Last month, we updated our Search Quality Rater Guidelines to provide more detailed examples of low-quality webpages for
